

International Junior Masters Informational Document #4 Academies and College Recruiting

David Allibone

For the past several years the IJM has been fortunate to have David Allibone in attendance for players and parents to talk to as a resource for information regarding golf centered high school academy opportunities as well as the college recruiting experience. It's a daunting task and the IJM is pleased to announce that David will be with us again this year. He is now with Club Med Academies in Florida and his years of experience in junior and collegiate golf can greatly benefit parents and players who are interested in a more intense golf training environment at the high school level, or who may be interested in gaining knowledge about the college recruiting process. Several IJM players have opted for the academy experience and he has helped many in focusing their college search process.

This year, on Tuesday afternoon June 29, the IJM will host an informal cookout during the long drive competition. David will be in attendance for this event which is an ideal time to meet and discuss the opportunities available. If you wish to arrange an appointment with Dave, or just contact him by phone or email, I include his contact information below. David will be on course daily during the tournament.
