

International Junior Masters Announces Strategic Partnership with Drip Golf

The International Junior Masters (IJM) is proud to announce a new strategic partnership with Drip Golf, a growing leader in the junior golf space dedicated to supporting the tradition and future of the game.

Founded in 1953, the International Junior Masters is the oldest international junior golf invitational in North America and has long been recognized as one of the premier events in junior golf. This partnership marks an exciting step forward in continuing that legacy while enhancing opportunities for elite junior players from around the world.

Through this collaboration, IJM and Drip Golf will work together to further strengthen the tournament field and expand competitive pathways for top junior golfers. The partnership will include mutual exemptions into both the International Junior Masters and the newly introduced Stitch Junior Invitational, debuting this November.

“We are excited to partner with Drip Golf, an organization that clearly shares our commitment to both the history and future of junior golf,” said Jeff Kamien, Tournament Director of the International Junior Masters. “For over 70 years, the IJM has been built on tradition, competition, and international camaraderie. This partnership allows us to continue honoring that legacy while creating new opportunities for the next generation of players to compete at the highest level.”

By aligning with Drip Golf, the International Junior Masters continues its mission of delivering a world-class competitive experience while evolving alongside the modern landscape of junior golf.

This partnership reflects a shared vision of preserving the game’s rich traditions while providing meaningful opportunities for the next generation of elite junior golfers.
